GILBERT F. WHITE LECTURE IN THE GEOGRAPHICAL SCIENCES

Climate, Oceans, and Human Health: The Saga of a Cholera-Chaser

GIVEN BY

Rita R. Colwell
University of Maryland

Wednesday February 18, 2009
5:30 pm  Light reception to follow

Keck Center of the National Academies
Room 100
500 Fifth Street NW
Washington, DC

RSVPs to Jared Eno (jeno@nas.edu) appreciated by February 4, 2009

For more information, please visit http://dels.nas.edu/besr/gsc.shmtl

The aim of the Gilbert F. White Lecture Series is to focus on connections between the geographical sciences and society. It both honors Dr. White, and uses his example as an inspiration for geographers to share their work on the connections between science and society.